Excerpt: . iv.--the awakening at beggarbush george came down on Tuesday evening and slept at Harris place. We thought this a better arrangement than his own suggestion, which was that we should call for him on our way and pick him up. Picking George up in the morning means picking him out of bed to begin with, and shaking him awake--in itself an exhausting effort with which to commence the day; helping him find his things and finish his packing, and then waiting for him while he eats his breakfast, a tedious entertainment from the spectator s point of view, full of wearisome repetition. I knew that if he slept at Beggarbush he would be up in time. I have slept there myself, and I know what happens. About the middle of the night, as you judge, though in reality it may be somewhat later, you are startled out of your first sleep by what sounds like a rush of cavalry along the passage just outside the door. Your half-awakened intelligence fluctuates between burglars, the Day of Judgment, and a gas explosion. You sit up in bed and listen intently. You are not kept waiting long; the next moment a door is violently slammed, and somebody or something is evidently coming downstairs on a tea-tray. I told you so, says a voice, and immediately some hard substance, a head, one would say from the ring of it, rebounds against the panel of your door. By...
