Not illustrated. 1861 Excerpt: .the air does not within a reasonable limit of time create ammonia from urea and the other organic substances, we are bound to say that an essential progress would be effected by these researches of Neubauer. The subject of ammonia in connection with the animal economy would be of immense importance, if it should be proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, what Dr. Richardson (Astley Cooper, Prize Essay for 1856, On the Cause of the Coagulation of the Blood) has endeavoured to show, namely, that ammonia is a regular constituent of the blood, and the solvent of fibrin in the living body. (pp. 219, 220.) According to the same author--who again refers to Neubauer s analyses for the proof of the assertion-- The ammonia of the salts of ammonia, when the latter are taken into the stomach, passes unchanged through the system and is discharged in the urine. (p. 223.) We have cited the above facts--principally of a chemical and physiological nature--because they are not only interesting, but also have an important relation to the pathological question which presents itself in regard to ammonia considered as a constituent of the urine; and whether its retention in the bipod produces any morbid effects. We have not very much to offer upon this portion of the subject; but there are some considerations which are significant. There is a great deal to be learned in regard to the matter--to say nothing of the points in dispute--and principally in...
